EXAMAGGEDON

Sweltering heat. Lazy mornings. Family trips. Holiday dips. There's a lot to love about summertime. But, as brilliant as summer is, we at Meadowcroft have been chomping at the bit to reunite with our young learners. With autumn here, one might think that the good times are waning. On the contrary! The good times have merely begun. On the 3rd of September, pupils re-entering our gates were met with the phenomenal news that the effort they'd put into their exams had paid off in spades.

For those readers who've been keeping an eye on this space, you'll be aware that last year was nothing short of examaggedon (that isn't a word, but I know you get it). For any school, exams are a sweat inducing, fear evoking ordeal. So, for a school like ours, surely the potential of our pupils actually bagging grades in such a gruelling process is a longshot... right? Well, wave those notions goodbye. Our pupils absolutely "smashed it" as Mr Clarke would no doubt say. Despite the intensity of GCSEs, our pupils not only braved the storms of Mathematical blizzards, English tides and Scientific showers... but emerged from the other side with some quality qualifications.
