

A GOTHIC CHRISTMAS

Our key stage three pupils have been shaking things up in their English classes recently...

*...With Gothic literature! A genre filled with dripping dark mysteries and adrenaline pumping frights, our pupils have been dipping their toes in Bram Stoker's Dracula and Mary Shelley's Frankenstein (to name just a few). Better still, this has inspired them to write their very own gothic pieces resulting in some macabre and impressive morbid story telling! Even better still, Beech students have actually taken a little page from Tim Burton's 'Nightmare before Christmas', going as far as to produce their own Gothic Christmas Horror Show! It'd appear wonders never cease here at Meadowcroft (however ghoulish).*

ARCTIC SEASON

Befitting the season, two of our primary forms (affectionately known as 'Conkers' and 'Chestnuts') have been studying the habitats of arctic creatures. Naturally, with 'Conkers' class possessing some of our most creative students, they've been creating a wonderful array of arctic-centric collages, landscapes and animals out of various materials to accompany their studies. 'Chestnuts' have even been conducting their own experiments concerning insulation (gotta keep warm). To top things off, 'Chestnuts' have also crafted their very own survivalist 'hacks' guides, filled with tricks and tips for keeping healthy and snug in arctic environments (I'm sure it'd give Bear Grylls a run for his money).
